“Mandatory Fun Day”. Every year, the students gather for games, snacks, and other miscellaneous activities and end their day with a talent show that is open for anyone in the student body to enter.

This year’s activities started in the Greeno building with various Christmas themed games including charades, Christmas trivia, and a basketball inspired twist on musical chairs. Score was kept among the classes to add an air of competition among the students.

Before long, the talent show had begun. The first act was a song sang by freshman Cameron Shultz, who has now participated in the talent show for three years running. Next, Blaine Rothacker, junior, played and sang “Cat’s In the Cradle” with his acoustic guitar. Then followed Kaley Schweitzer, junior, who played a collection of songs on piano, including the classic, “House of the Rising Sun”. The final act was the local four piece rock band Terror

We Fall who returned for their second year, with a group of six songs, which included pop hits “Uptown Funk” and “Down”. The band’s members include vocalist/guitarist Brandon Bruce (Junior), drummer Christopher Shine (Junior), guitarist Chandler Jaragoske (Sophomore), and a member from Aberdeen, bassist Jake Hardie (Junior). The day was closed with the quarterly pheasant buck drawings before the students were released for Christmas break.
